

Bryan Holcomb
CS 410: Text Information Systems
Final Project Progress Report

Currently, I have the majority of the sentiment analysis code written and I am in the process of testing on small, manually-copied articles.

My next step is to complete testing, which I plan to do this week.

The next steps after testing is complete are to build a webscraper to build up a corpus of news articles from various sources. I foresee one challenge being to find an easily-accessible API that allows scraping of web pages without ads or irrelevant content.